1921 RED CROSS ROLL CALL DRIVE OPENS; COUNTY QUOTA IS 10,000

Campaign Now On In Ulster County—City Drive Starts Shortly—What Red Cross is Doing at Home Explained by Judge Hasbrouck—Workers Met Sunday to Plan Drive—Captains of Drive.

Ulster county's fifth Red Cross membership drive has started. The quota for Kingston and Ulster county this year is 10,000 members. The drive started Saturday in some sections of the county, and in Kingston it will shortly be inaugurated. There was a meeting of the ward captains held Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. with John D. Schoonmaker, chairman of the drive, at which time plans were discussed. A list of the workers in each ward is to be filed with Chairman Schoonmaker.

It is expected that the Red Cross drive, as usual, will go over the top. Many will doubtless ask the question as to what the Red Cross is doing in Ulster county. The question is answered by the following open letter to the residents of Ulster county written by Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross:

To the People of Ulster County:

The Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross under the direction of the National Red Cross Society, of which Warren Gamaliel Harding, President of the United States, is the head, appeals to the people of Ulster County to embrace the opportunity of the fifth membership drive to identify themselves with the greatest and most future looking philanthropy of the world.

As in the war, the government laid upon the Red Cross the care of sick and wounded soldiers, so in times of peace there has fallen to the Red Cross the duty of seeking out and aiding the sick and wounded soldier; the duty of securing the pay and allowances the law provides for him and his dependents; the duty of securing for and protecting him and his family in the insurances of the government; the duty of listening to the compplaints of soldiers and their families and of attending to them and bringing the balm of intelligent assistance into their riven lives. This our chapter has attempted to do in the year 1920-1, under the direction of its competent Home Service Section committee, whose chairman is Judge Fowler, and in the functioning of its trained and experienced secretary, Mrs. C. W. Hasbrouck. During the year she has formulated the claims of one hundred and forty-two soldiers. By Mrs. Florence E. DuBois, the visiting officer and the secretary, competent service has been rendered to 105 families of the soldiers and aid and comfort given. The ministrations of the office have been rendered personally during the year to 778 ex-service men and their families, besides 1,367 written communications required by the work have been sent.

Until July 1st, of this year the chapter maintained a visiting nurse, whose intelligent activities were administered to hundreds of families of veterans and others in the interest of public health; and at the annual meeting a resolution was adopted expressing its sense that this particular activity should be en-

The importance of the continuance of this "carrying on" is reflected in the fact that out of the 388,000 veterans who have applied to the government for vocational training but 5,050 have been so far rehabilitated. The ordinary veteran is not possessed of the education or the patience necessary to cope with the red tape which hampers securing the benefits of the laws, and this fact must make plain the need of the Red Cross agency which alone embodies the interest, the sympathy and the power to effectually deal with existing conditions. Then, too, there are so many suffering from wounds of the body and disorders of the mind. They need hospitalization. Only 26,000 of these heroes are now in government hospitals. The government is striving with the problem but as yet has not met it. There are thousands still to be provided for and in this field the Red Cross is the agency through which such afflicted persons can most effectively secure governmental help.

The calls of suffering families and of stranded veterans are oppressive in their frequency and it is to the Red Cross they turn for temporary help and for money enough to reach their homes or places where employment is promised or for the means of subsistence for their families until pay allowances become available. Hundreds of dollars have been loaned and donated in these lines of effort by your chapter.

It must not be overlooked that out of every dollar of membership money given in our county, half of it goes into the national society's treasury to help it to function as the great mother of the world. During the present year China was smitten with famine. Half a million died despite the efforts of your great society which saved from death millions of suffering men and women and children. It is mothering now in Europe the aged, the little mothers, the sick men and starving children and babies of Russia, Soviet Russia refusing every other agency of help but the Red Cross. Dr. Vernon Kellogg in a recent interview has described some children in a building along a railroad in Russia. There were no arrangements upon the wall of the building. There were no beds or cots. But there were hundreds of children waiting for the train and for the short ration which kept them from starvation. Where did they spend their time? There. Where sleep? There—against the walls, on the floor leaning against each other. When Kellogg told their mothers that in two days the children should have milk and cocoa to make them fat, the mothers wept for joy. Kellogg spoke for the Red Cross.

An illustration of the efficiency of the Red Cross in disaster, relief was given at Pueblo, Colorado. There, as you have read, occurred an extraordinary flood by which 16,000 people were rendered homeless and property of the value of $20,000,000 was destroyed. The flood causing this great damage occurred during the afternoon and evening of June 3, and by noon of the next day the Red Cross had established kitchens in the flood centers of the city and thirty minutes after hot soup and coffee and other food in abundance were being distributed to all comers: beds, beding and cots were assembled; the court house, churches and school houses utilized; the homeless were housed, the refugees provided for and the hungry fed and death and disease conquered by the Red Cross. It has afforded relief in 43 of the disasters of the year.

Wherever famine stalks or typhus or ravaging diseases octopus-like pander for death; whether in the Orient, on the steppes of Russia, in the Balkans; when there is no other agency to grasp the hands of humanity lifted for help or to listen to the pleadings of agonized hearts the Red Cross is there. No places or peoples the earth over are beyond its purpose of loving care and practical ministration.

It is Buddha, it is Confucius, it is Mohomet, it is Christ, it is the great spirit, it is God in man!

To be in the Red Cross is to be in the greatest work of the world. Its program embodies the care of our national heroes and their families; suffering humanity the world over; the prevention of disease, the conservation of human energy by the health protection of human lives; dealing with the catastrophies of fire, flood, storm, tempest, diseases and famine. There are five classes of membership:

Annual membership	$1.00
Contributing membership	5.00
Sustaining membership	10.00
Life membership	50.00
Patron membership	100.00

Your Ulster County Chapter welcomes you to its membership. There are no high seats, no low seats. Every member enjoys the same rights in the organization whatever the cost of his membership. The association is, "The union of those who love, in the service of those who suffer."

Signed, G. D. B. HASBROUCK,
Chairman, Ulster County Chapter, American Red Cross.

John D. Schoonmaker supplements Justice Hasbrouck's letter with the following:

To the People of Ulster County:

The Fifth Annual Red Cross Roll Call Drive, American Red Cross, to take place November 11-25 is now under way and the following is a list of the Executive Committee and the captains in the city of Kingston and the towns and villages throughout the county.

A vigorous campaign for members throughout the County will be conducted. It is earnestly hoped by the committee that the people of Ulster county will respond to this call of the Red Cross as they have responded to all calls of the work of the Red Cross in the past.

Annual membership of the Red Cross costs but $1.00. For those who may not know the present needs of the society and the reasons for this appeal, we refer you to the letter prepared by Judge Hasbrouck, Chairman of the Ulster County Chapter.

Make it easy for those who have volunteered their services in this great work, a sacrifice of time far greater in value than any contribution asked for, by being ready with the amount desired for membership when called upon, or better yet forward your membership to the captain of your ward or district.

Most sincerely yours,
JOHN D. SCHOONMAKER,
Chairman Fifth Annual Red Cross Roll Call Drive, Ulster County.

FACTORY WORK BETTER IN OCT.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 14.—A gain in employment in New York state factories was again reported from September to October. The October increase in employment amounted to nearly 2½ per cent, according to the statement issued today by the industrial commissioner, Henry D. Sayer, of the state department of labor. Although the increases among the individual industries were not so large as some of those reported in September, they were more general, fewer industries reporting less employes.

The increases reported were chiefly the result of an improvement in business conditions. However, some factories employed more workers because of a seasonal increase in demand. Every one of the chief industry groups reported an increase except the water, light and power group. Decreases occurred in several individual industries as the result of business depression or the end of seasonal activity.

At Franklin Street Church.

A grand concert will be given at the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church Friday, November 18, by local talents. There will be a cake sale on the afternoon of the 18th at 3 o'clock and supper immediately after the concert. Mrs. I. L. G. Quann, Mrs. Carrie Crowell are the managers.

GOVERNMENT PAYS BOYD JUDGMENT

Widow of Policeman Fatally Hurt in Crossing Accident Gets $8,000 Awarded By Jury in 1918.

A decree has been granted by the surrogate in the estate of John G. Boyd, deceased. From the account and the decree it appears that the judgment which was obtained by his widow, Mrs. Isabelle Boyd, against the New York Central railroad, has been finally paid in full. It also appears that the interest allowed by the courts was sufficient to pay the legal costs and disbursements, so that Mrs. Boyd receives for herself the $8,000 awarded by the jury.

This case grew out of the Broadway crossing accident on March 4th, 1918, at which time Mr. Boyd received injuries from which he died five days later. The action was tried in the supreme court in December, 1918, and a verdict of $8,000 given. The railroad appealed to the appellate division of the supreme court, which affirmed the judgment. The director general of railroads was substituted then in place of the railroad and an appeal was taken to the courtof appeals, which also sustained the verdict, by a judgment and decree made in April last. As the final judgment was against the director general, the United States government had to pay the judgment Mayor Canfield was the attorney for Mrs. Boyd and Amos Van Etten for the railroad company.

KINGSTON BOY HAD REVOLVER

Says the Poughkeepsie Eagle-News:

Two youths giving their names as Joseph Amato, of 7169 State Road, Philadelphia, Pa., and Dominic Carpute, of 206 North street, Kingston Point, were arrested by Patrolman John Martin when he found them loitering around the New York Central station at one o'clock Saturday morning. A pearl stick pin, two bar pins and several keys were found in Amato's possession, while Carpute had a .22 calibre revolver.

The boys answered the general description of the pair who Thursday night held up Norman C. Milliken in Hooker avenue, and the police at once began an investigation of their possible connection with the robbery. Lieutenant William T. Kimlin took the gun and the stick pin to Mr. Milliken's residence. Mr. Milliken found that the pin was not his, but said that the gun tallied closely with his recollection of that used in the hold-up. He will visit headquarters this morning to attempt to identify the prisoners.

Amato and Carpute told the police that they had both been ordered from their homes by their parents and had gone to Newburgh to try to join the navy. Finding no recruiting station there, they came to Poughkeepsie, they said. Both denied any connection with the Milliken hold-up. Amato was held for vagrancy and Carpute for vagrancy and carrying concealed weapons.

LEAGUE MANAGERS HELD MEETING

Resulting in the Outlawing of the Original Celtics of New York City and Planning This Week's Schedule.

A meeting of the New York State League managers and players Sunday, at Schenectady, resulted in the blacklisting of the Original Celtic basketball team of New York city. This action follows a similar move on the part of the Eastern League. This means that no player in either league is privileged to play a team contesting against the Celtics. Manager Furey of the Celtics has his players, all of whom are either Eastern or State league men, under ironclad contracts forbidding them from playing in these leagues.

COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Ulster Has More Reason For One Than Dutchess, Says Bigelow.

To the Editor of The Freeman:

Sir: On return from a recent journey through the colonies of Japan, I was invited to speak before the Historical Society of Dutchess county, and there learned to my infinite surprise that our own county of Ulster had no such institution at Kingston.

Yet what can Dutchess boast of that is more interesting historically than the treasures of our own county? What is Poughkeepsie when pitted against the combined glories of Rondout and Kingston? Are we devoid of public spirit? Have we no men of generous mood and bursting purses? Is the courage extinct that gave William the Silent to Holland, that made Hudson homes for the Protestant Palatines and that made this county the focus of patriotic effort in the desperate days of 1777 when little Hurley loomed large as the quasi capital of our Empire state. Let us all then rally to the help of our gallant Admiral Higginson and each send a contribution towards founding the Ulster County Historical Society.

Respectfully yours,
POULTNEY BIGELOW.

M. D. RAFFERTY KILLED BY AUTO

Was Waiting For Trolley Car Between Albany and Troy After Having Left Nolan's Damaged Car—Was Returning From Elks' Armistice Day Celebration.

Michael D. Rafferty of this city, who for the past eight years had been custodian of the Federal building at Albany, died late Saturday afternoon at St Peter's Hospital in that city as the result of injuries received at an early hour Saturday morning on the road between Albany and Troy when he was struck by an automobile while waiting for a trolley car.

Mr. Rafferty had accompanied Thomas F. Nolan, former exalted ruler of the Albany lodge of Elks to Troy on Friday evening when the Troy lodge of Elks held an Armistice Day celebration at the Elks' club house there. The trip to Troy was made in Mr. Nolan's automobile. Mr. Nolan gave the Elks' eleven o'clock toast which was part of the ceremonies at the club house, and after the close of the ceremonies they started to return to Albany.

According to the story told to the police by Nolan, his automobile had been in an accident several days ago and the steering gear had been damaged. He thought the damage was trivial and thought he could make the trip to Troy and return Friday night without trouble. Soon after leaving the Elks' club house at Troy, however, he said he found that the steering wheel was not working right and as a result his machine kept zig-zagging on the road.

When near the Delaware & Hudson railroad bridge on the Albany-Troy road, said Nolan, his car mounted the "T" rail and became stalled between the tracks. A trolley crew helped him right the machine and put it back on the road. On account of the trouble, said Nolan, Mr Rafferty said it would probably be best for him to take a trolley car into Albany and have a repair crew from the garage come out to bring in the Nolan machine, and he advised Nolan to drive slowly along the road. Mr. Rafferty stood on the running board while Nolan ran his car for a short distance down the road, and then alighted to wait for a trolley car. Nolan said he continued slowly and carefully for a short distance.

The authorities who investigated the accident expressed the belief that Mr. Rafferty was struck by a north bound automobile after leaving the Nolan car and while waiting for the trolley car. This belief is supported by the story told to Detective Joseph P. Ryan by two railroad men who said that while they were walking south along the Troy road they saw Mr Rafferty on the running board of the Nolan car just after it had been gotten off the trolley tracks and had started slowly down the road. They walked along and when they came to Garbrance's Lane they saw Mr. Rafferty lying in the roadway, and going over to him they recognized him as the man they had seen on the running board of the Nolan car further north on the road a short time previous.

They said that one of Mr. Rafferty's shoes was off his foot, which would indicate that he had been struck by a fast moving vehicle and had been tossed into the roadway. He was unconscious and bleeding from cuts on the head and face. A short distance away, they said, stood a big automobile, and they recalled hearing one man say to the driver: "Well, it wasn't your fault." Then the members of the automobile party climbed in their machine before the railroad men could ask them what they knew about the accident, and the machine sped away. The railroad men assisted the crew of a trolley car to put Mr. Rafferty aboard and the car started for St. Peter's Hospital. Later the police arrested Nolan on a charge of reckless driving, and Sergeant Robert A. Kelly of the State Troopers and Detective Ryan are seeking the driver of the automobile which the railroad men saw near the scene of the accident when they discovered Mr. Rafferty's body.

Mr Rafferty was a son of the late John and Elizabeth Rafferty and was born in this city. For a number of years he was salesman for the late Howard Myer and later with his brother, John R. Rafferty, bought the Myer building on John street and continued the tobacco and cigar manufacturing business with which both had been associated. They sold the business to ex-Sheriff Henry J. Hoffman. Mr Rafferty was appointed custodian of the Federal building at Albany on July 5, 1915, and occupied that position up to the time of his death. He performed the responsible duties of his office with entire satisfaction and was highly regarded not only by the various officials who have been housed there but also by hundreds of Albanians and others whose business took them to the Federal building.

Mr Rafferty was popular with everyone he met. During his many years of salesmanship in the tobacco business and in official life in Albany he met hundreds of strangers with all of whom he made friends quickly. He served for a number of years as a member of Company M and later for a time was engaged in the care and custody of the New York State Armory in this city. Upon the death of the late James W. Murphy in 1910 he was appointed supervisor for the Third Supervisor's District of this city and served in the board of 1910-11.

Socially Mr Rafferty was a member of Kingston Council, No. 273, Knights of Columbus, a charter member of the Fourth Degree Assembly of the Knights of Columbus, the Holy Name Society of the Albany Catholic Church, Kingston Council No. 716, Order of Loyal Commercial Travelers and Kingston Lodge, No. 550 B. P. O. Elks.

He is survived by three brothers, John R. Rafferty of this city, Joseph R. Rafferty and William J. Rafferty, both of New York city.

The remains were brought to Kingston Sunday and the funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock from the residence of his brother, John R. Rafferty No. 136 Main street and at ten o'clock from St. Joseph's Church where a solemn Mass of requiem will be celebrated for the repose of his soul. Interment will be in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Kingston Council Knights of Columbus will meet at the home of Mr Rafferty on Tuesday morning at eight o'clock and Kingston Lodge of Elks will hold a meeting at the home on Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The Holy Name Society of St Joseph's Church will meet at Mr Rafferty's home at eight o'clock this evening for services.

FLAGG'S WIFE HELD IN JAIL

And He Is Awarded Interlocutory Decree Of Divorce From Her—She Is Held By Dutchess County Authorities As Material Witness In Beacon Case.

Lyles M. Flagg of Kingston was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from his wife, Martha Flagg, who is now being detained in the county jail, Dutchess county, as a material witness in connection with the arrest of a Beacon young man charged with a serious crime by two girls who are under the age of 16 years.

Mrs. Flagg has not been with her husband for several months but has lived at 27 South Perry street, Poughkeepsie, it is stated. They were married at Kingston in 1917 and have one child.

Stephen Odell, who lives at the place where Mrs. Flagg has made her home since coming here, told of the visits to the house of a young man by the name of Raymond Miller and on this evidence the divorce was granted.

Mrs. Flagg was brought from the jail to attend the trial and was sworn to identify a number of letters she admitted having sent to Miller. She denied the specific acts charged against her by O'Dell, but said she did not oppose the action for divorce brought by her husband against her; in fact, she wanted him to be given a divorce.—Poughkeepsie Evening Star.

MANY FOREST FIRES.

But Protective System Made Loss Trifling.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 14.—The 1921 fire chart of the conservation commission shows the progress that the state has made in reducing the amount of forest fires losses through the development of its fire protective system.

The season just ended was the worst in many years, not only in this state, but in other eastern states and in Canada. There were more fires this year than in any previous season of the thirty years for which records were available, but the losses were trifling in comparison with other years, as the result of the promptness and efficiency with which they were controlled.

Buel Annulment Action.

The action brought by Violet Buel against John Buel to annul their marriage was tried before Judge Hasbrouck at Supreme court chambers Saturday. The ground on which annulment is asked is that the plaintiff was under the age of 18 years when she married and was not living with her husband when she attained that age. She testified she was born in the town of Marbletown on April 4, 1898; that she was married April 7, 1915, and left her husband on April 1, 1916. She now resides on Newkirk avenue and he resides on Lucas avenue. Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision. D. G. Atkins appeared for the plaintiff.

Marbletown Rejected Proposition.

The town of Marbletown last Tuesday voted down by a majority of twenty-four the proposition to buy a steam roller and crushing outfit for the town. The town will not, therefore, participate in county and state aid for building new roads until it provides proper equipment, and probably will be barred from such participation for at least two years.

St. Colman's Fair.

The annual fair of St. Colman's Church at East Kingston, Saturday evening was a big success. The $50 in gold was won by James McGurl of the Shamrock Towing Company, the ton of coal by Mrs. Edward Reid of Gill street; and the comfortable by John Hurson.

Comedy at St. Peter's Tonight.

Judging from the dress rehearsal Sunday afternoon the presentation of "Stop Thief" at St. Peter's Hall this and Tuesday evenings, will set a new mark for finished amateur productions.

PLAN FOR "HI-Y" AUXILIARY HERE

The Armistice Day meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary held at the parlors of the Y on Friday afternoon was largely attended, Mrs. Longyear, the president, presiding. The devotional exercises were in charge of Mrs. Edward N. Snow, who read from Revelations and the Psalms, portions especially appropriate to Armistice Day. There were exceptionally interesting committee reports given. New members accepted were, Mrs. Arthur Wicks, Mrs. D. F. Hammond, Mrs. E. D. Schepmoes, Mrs. George H. Clark, Mrs. John N. Matthews, Mrs. Ira D. Woolsey, Mrs. Frank Dudley and Mrs. J. W. Streeton.

Chester Hall, secretary of the Boys' Work Department, spoke very earnestly to the ladies about the purpose of the "Hi-Y" Club and pledge. The latter is as follows: "I promise to do my best in seeking to create, maintain and expend a high standard of Christian character throughout my school and community." He then asked the ladies to organize a "Hi-Y" Auxiliary among the High School girls who will seek to live up to the same standard and who will also assist in serving the weekly Hi-Y suppers.

The committee appointed to organize such a club was appointed as follows: Chairman, Mrs. William Warner, Mrs. Frank Thompson, Mrs. William Nelson, Mrs. J. S. Rowland, Mrs. William Longyear. Mr. Hall reserved his talk on San Antonio for another meeting.

Secretary Safford then read the ladies a letter from Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, giving a very interesting and concise account of the accomplishments of the Red Cross during the last year or two. This information was given in order that the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary members might be prepared to meet the Fifth Red Cross Roll Call solicitors favorably, because of their knowledge of Red Cross services rendered and future help to be given.

Mrs. Elting, chairman of the entertainment committee had arranged a very pleasing musical program which included the following vocal solos by Mrs. Minnie Eaton Beaumont, formerly of Baltimore: "Staccato Polka," by Mulder; "Absent," by Metcalf; "Waiting," by Millard.

Arrangements and preparations for the coming December sale to be held by the auxiliary on December 2nd, are going forward in a gratifying manner it was stated.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!

Being a Story

Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

The sun was sinking behind a black mass of clouds that were reflected in the quiet gray waters as Jim and his companion rounded the island on which the lighthouse stood, and pointed towards the mainland.

As they swung around the rocky point they sighted a figure of a woman who stood far out on the point waving a handkerchief in a desperate attempt to attract their attention.

"I can't make out what she says. Let's go nearer."

Pedro turned the nose of the boat sea-ward, and they rapidly approacheddd the island. Then, as they drew close, he turned off the motor, and let the boat drift in. With the engine stilled, they could hear the woman's voice distinctly.

"My husband has been taken ill suddenly. Won't you help me?"

Jim sprang for the rocks and approached the woman. He learned that her husband, the light-house keeper, had been seized with some form of malady from which he suffered intensely.

"I want to get him to the hospital at once, once," wept the woman.

"Could he stand the trip in a motor boat?"

"He is almost unconscious. If you were to wrap him in heavy blankets and lay him on the planks, I'm sure that would be better than my waiting till morning for the government boat."

Jim consulted Pedro who gladly offered his assistance.

"How about you?" Jim asked of the woman.

"I can't leave the lighthouse. I know by the squawking of the seagulls and the roar of the waves on the beach that there's a storm coming. I wouldn't dare to leave the light at such a time."

In spite of Jim's eagerness to do the woman a good turn, he was ever conscious of the fact that he must be ready for a fresh job every two ars, and instantly he had figured at being light-house keeper would suit him just right.

"Are you all alone here?"

"It happens that I am. And the ireless is out of order. I expect ip will come in the morning, but for the present I must stay."

"Why can't I stay with you? You need a man about the place. I'll help Pedro with your husband at this end of the trip, and there will be plenty of aid at the other end. Please let me stay."

The woman was really glad of his offer, her courage had been broken by the fear of her husband's illness. The long dark night ahead frightened her. Jim soon had the sick man placed comfortably in the boat, and Pedro headed with all speed towards the mainland, while Jim took the sobbing woman by the arm and insisted upon her drinking some coffee which he made for her.

After that, there were plenty of tasks to do. He wanted to learn about the fog signals and the revolving light. She had her chickens to feed, and other odd jobs must be done before night closed in.

While Jim sympathized with her, he had his own worries. How was he to hold down his job for two days? Nature was with him, as it happened. That night the storm, predicted by Mrs. White, broke. Jim woke to hear the thunder of the waves crashing over the rocks, and the wind that seemed powerful enough to uproot the sturdy lighthouse from its base.

The next morning it had not abated a whit. "This is one of our three day storms. The government boat won't be able to land today," Mrs. White said at breakfast. "I won't receive word about my Henry for two days. But I'm glad he went. Whatever would I have done for him?"

"It seems to me, luck is with us all," soothed Jim. "You may be sure he's having the best of care in the hospital. And I'll do the best I can, as the new assistant lighthouse keeper."

GETTING RID OF A NASTY TEMPER

How Gude's Pepto-Mangan Relieves Ill Humor of Bad Health.

When ill humor becomes chronic and a man or a woman who should be genial becomes known as a "grouch," nine times out of ten the cause is physical. When blood gets weak and full of poison it leaves the body weak, the face pale, and causes a tired feeling. There is no endurance. Nerves get all tattered, because in a weak-blooded condition the body is not nourished sufficiently with the oxygen that rich red blood supplies.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is a blood-builder and when taken in steady doses for a while it causes a flood of fresh red blood cells to stream through the body, bringing robust health and strength. With good blood, rich and red, there are no "grouches." Life looks good and pleasures are keenly enjoyed.

Druggists have Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid and tablet form. Be sure to get the genuine with the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package.—Advertisement.

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock, Nov. 12.—On Tuesday, November 8, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Van Etten gave a birthday party in honor of Lester Sagendorf's 59th birthday. Mr. Sagendorf is an uncle of Mrs. Van Etten. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison and son, Ralph, the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Lincoln and son, Robert, and Miss Edna, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Sagendorf, who was on that day re-elected supervisor of the town, George Lasher, W. G. Cole and Miss Caroline and Lillian Van Etten. A very pleasant enjoyable day and evening were spent. Mr. and Mrs. Van Etten surely know how to serve a dinner, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

On Friday evening, November 11, the people of the M. E. Church of Willbrahm gave the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Lincoln a real surprise. There were present Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Short, Mr. and Mrs. Shotmon Short, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Shultis, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Shultis, Mr. and Mrs. Watson Ransley, Mr. and Mrs. John Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Short, Mrs. Loretta Short, Mrs. Aaron Van De Bogart, Miss Ledora Ransley, Miss Hilda Short, Miss Celia Shultis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Shultis. The Willbrahm people knew how to serve at a banquet. They brought an abundance of good things which were greatly enjoyed. A grand social time was had. Worshipping and visiting was indulged in till 11:30, when the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln departed, leaving their many blessings on their pastor and his wife.

World's Greatest Volcano.

The "House of Everlasting Fire" is part of the great volcano Kilauea, on the Hawaiian islands. What Fujiyama is among waterfalls Kilauea is among volcanoes. Not so beautiful as Vesuvius or Etna, not so high as some of the lofty flame mountains of South America, Kilauea retains its title by sheer power in which it is surrounded. The crater, about four miles square in extent, is an area of black desolation, a floor of lava cracked and seamed until it resembles one of the circles of horror in Dante's Inferno.—Kansas City Star.

PROCLAMATION.

The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent: To the Sheriff of the County of Ulster, Greeting: —We command you that you summon to be and appear at a term of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to be held by a Justice of the Supreme Court, at the Court House in Kingston, in and for the County of Ulster, on the First Monday of December, 1921, the several persons who shall have been drawn or summoned to serve as Grand and Petit Jurors at the said court. And we further command you to bring before the said court all prisoners then being in the jail of the said County of Ulster, together with all the processes and proceedings now remaining there in your hand, and we further command you to make proclamation in the manner prescribed by law, notifying all persons bound to appear at the said court, by recognizances or otherwise to appear thereat, and requiring all Justices of the Peace, Coroners and other officers who have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at the said court or who have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, to return such recognizances, inquisitions and examinations to the said court on the opening thereof on the first day of its sitting, and have them and their this precept.

Witness, Hon. Charles E. Nichols, one of the Justices of our Supreme Court, at the Court House in Kingston in said County, the 9th day of November, 1921.

FREDERICK G. TRAVER, District Attorney.

In pursuance to the above precept, I hereby make proclamation that a term of the Supreme Court of the State of New York and Jail Delivery, will be held at the Court House in Kingston, in and for the County of Ulster, on the First Monday of December next, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day; and all persons who will prosecute against persons confined in the jail of said County are required to be then and there present, to prosecute as shall be just; and all persons bound to appear at the said court, by recognizances or otherwise, are required to appear thereat; and all Justices of the Peace, Coroners or other officers who may have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at the said court or who may have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, are required to prosecute such recognizances, inquisitions and examinations to the said court, at the opening thereof on the first day of its sitting, and have them and their this precept.

Witness, Hon. Charles E. Nichols, one of the Justices of our Supreme Court, at the Court House in Kingston in said County, the 9th day of November, 1921.

FREDERICK G. TRAVER, District Attorney.

In pursuance to the above precept, I hereby make proclamation that a term of the Supreme Court of the State of New York and Jail Delivery, will be held at the Court House in Kingston, in and for the County of Ulster, on the First Monday of December next, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day; and all persons who will prosecute against persons confined in the jail of said County are required to be then and there present, to prosecute as shall be just; and all persons bound to appear at the said court, by recognizances or otherwise, are required to appear thereat; and all Justices of the Peace, Coroners or other officers who may have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at the said court or who may have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, are required to prosecute such recognizances, inquisitions and examinations to the said court, at the opening thereof on the first day of its sitting, and have them and their with their rolls and records, [illegible] and remembrances, to the [illegible] which to this office pertain.—Penal Code of Education November 9th, 1921.

IN OUTDOOR SUITS

Much Attention Paid to Riding and Golf Clothes.

Costumes Are Particularly Well Designed for Sport Wear; Wide Scarf Arrangement.

A great deal of attention is being paid to the knickerbocker golf or hiking suit this season. The peg top breeches in both riding and golf suits are less popular than the smoothly fitting models and in the cuff treatment in some instances the fullness, too, has been eliminated by a series of small gores that are used rather than the shirring. Shorter coats, too, are used cited as proving that women are becoming accustomed to this type of costume.

In addition to the suit with plaited or elastic back coat in the prevailing type suits have been noted consisting of knickerbockers in large two-toned over plaid fleeces to be worn with a slipover jumper in solid tone. This type of costume is particularly well adapted for winter sports and the wide scarf arrangement at the throat is a feature which commends it.

There is a demand for suits with riding breeches, and skirts to match are ordered. In this way a woman who rides a great deal may also use the breeches for hiking and golf.

STYLES AND FANCIES

The fitted basque and wide skirt are frequently made of taffeta.

The square armhole of deep cut has been adopted for sport wear in the costumes of heavy fabrics.

Long haired furs continue to be favored in neckpieces.

Velvet brocaded chiffons in shades of brown or henna tones and cafe du lait and cocoa colors are smart for fall gowns.

Straight line coats with side softness, wide buttons and large sleeves are forecasted as the mode of the coming season.

Gloves of black will lead for fall wear. Most of these gloves show a touch of white in the black stitching or a striking contrast note in trims of white.

Many of the new bags and vanities are small in size and in most cases open from the long envelope flap which lays the case perfectly flat and shows various vanity accessories in loops and pockets.

Black and white crepe de chine in combination is used for many smart new frocks.

Low heels are gaining in favor not only sport, but also dress slippers having them.

Net guimpes are to be had to wear with sleeveless dresses.

Close fitting, medium sized hats, trimmed across the back with silk fringe which hangs in points over the brim at the shoulders, are worn.

Shell and metal ornaments, shaped like Spanish combs, are used for hat trimmings.

Sphinx, gunmetal, platinum and steel gray are very strong.

Many dresses are made with embroidered or some novelty apron.

Crepe shawls, deeply fringed, are dyed either black or red, and have become as popular as the gay multi-colored Spanish shawl.

LEAF GREEN VELVET TURBAN

Leaf green velvet is draped into this smart little turban, the only ornament used being a pair of big green composition buttons.

For Formal Wear.

Not being satisfied with having had "a place in the sun" all during the spring and summer season the separate skirt still following the lines of the sport model is bidding for fall and winter favor and finding it. All through styles and fabrics are found that parallel the blouse model. Skirts for formal wear are being made from charmeuse Roshanara quarter grain and other silks in the heavier weaves and finished with sashes of the material heavily fringed.

Dimity Bed Spreads.

Plain dimity is coming more and more into use for bed spreads. This type of spread is much easier to launder than the heavier spreads. As well as the plain variety there are others with a narrow stripe of color running lengthwise at wide intervals.

Better Than Water.

An invalid whose mouth becomes dry and parched during the night, or a fever patient will find that an orange cut into small pieces and placed within easy reach of the bed so that a piece may be held in the mouth from time to time will be more beneficial than water. It has the added advantage that a patient can manage the piece of orange more easily than he could a glass of water.

FASHION NOTES

Sweeping ostrich feathers, like long, silky black curls, trail down from the crown of a black velvet hat to the bit of white shoulder that appears above the low Eugenie neckline of a black crepe de chine frock.

Beads in strings and strands' Feathers in rosettes, and tufts, and fan formation. Such embellishments make many a belle a lovely monument to the aboriginal fathers.

Ermine is a trying fur in daytime for any but the young and lovely. A blonde debutante cannot go astray in her choice of a wrap if she chooses black crepe de chine lined with gold brocade and topped with an ermine collar, especially if the hat atop her shining curls is a black toque with crystal ornaments.

The sporting plaids, checks, and stripes much used for the composite suit all summer, continue in popularity. These rigs are shown as "coasting suits," "skating apparel" and just plain "sport suits."

Duvetyn holds its own tenaciously in the bewildering display of new fabrics. It is very delicate in texture and rather perishable. But it is too lovely to be even escape from the modes. There are harder weaves that look a kinship to duvetyn in downy surface, including mousseline and erminie. The dovedown satin combines the dull luster of duvetyn with satin facing.

The spangled gown in misty fabrics is rising in popularity.

AMONG THE SEASON'S COATS

Full-Length Model Ranks as Strong Favorite—Coat-Wrap and Hip-Length in Limelight.

The full-length coat has a particular claim to sumptuousness in the voluminous sleeve that carries the effect of swathing and provides an excuse for graceful sweeps of the arm—there is individuality in the way the woman manages this wide circular sleeve. One model of cashmere with a long nap that clusters over the surface is a taut fitted circular in contour with armholes down to the waistline, the big circular sleeves taking on the look of small capes falling in shallow folds. This coat rivals the long cloak with fabric arranged to allow a deep fold over the arm.

A coat-wrap for walking use owes its touch of smartness to panel fronts and backs with straight sides slightly curved at the waistline—and to a wide muffler collar without a bit of trimming.

A short hip-length coat has a capey flare with a big chrysanthemum embroidered in the center of the back and on each front, done in loopstitch and buttonhole edge. A stem and a leaf is given to each flower, done in close stitchery.

Statesman's Advice.

We should do nothing inconsistent with the spirit and genius of our institutions. We should do nothing for revenge, but everything for security; nothing for the past, everything for the present and the future.—James A. Garfield.

quered the fleet of Semiramis, 4,000 strong, at the mouth of the Indus. But our wonder is abated when we learn that the fleet of Semiramis was carried on the backs of camels from the shores of Syria to the Indus' banks. These "ships" must have been smaller craft than now compete at Henley regatta, and the fleets of both monarchs could have been comfortably stowed in the hold of one of Great Britain's present day leviathan cargo boats. But the little rude ships of those far-off ages must not be despised. They were the seeds of an industry destined to be one of the greatest factors in the progress of civilization.—Whitehall Gazette.

MARINES TO THE RESCUE.

The old-time "gentlemen of the road," gallant to the women and considerate of the poor, were indeed "gentlemanly" thieves compared with the murderous bandits and mail-car robbers of today who ruthlessly employ even deadly explosives in their determination to get what they want. The account of the hold-up of an Illinois Central train, for example, shows not only shooting by the robbers but the use of dynamite and burning gasoline to compel the opening of the mail car and its treasures. The clerks had to surrender or be burned alive, and they were singed and slugged after being shot, and three other train employes were wounded. It appears that the robbers defeated their own ends by their atrocities and got away with but little of the expected loot.

The 1,000 armed "devil-dog" Marines ordered out to protect the mails are needed. They are instructed to shoot to kill, but let them be sure that they do not shoot and kill the wrong persons. At Paxton, Ill., the mail clerks and train employes were placed in the greater peril by "the stream of bullets toward the mail car" which "armed guards poured from the cars in front." Why were not these armed guards in the mail car, or if that was not feasible why were they not near enough to spring to its defense at the first outcry? The armed defenders must have been caught napping literally if the robbers had time to dynamite and gasoline the mail car before the bullets from the cars in front hurried them off. Doubtless the marines will be more effective in their management.

THREATENED CITIES OF TRADE

November 7 was the fourth anniversary of the revolt which overthrew the more enlightened Kerensky regime and delivered Russia up to Red experimentation. On that very day the Associated Press presented a picture of Petrograd terrible enough to bring doubt and fear to even the fanatical minds of the Bolsheviki. Petrograd is now a "city of rust," with less than 600,000 left of the more than 2,000,000 population of which it boasted a few years ago. Trade has departed from the Russian metropolis and, although winter's ice has not yet closed its ports, there are "miles and miles of deserted docks along its shipping canals." Very few of its factory chimneys are smoking, its roofs are no longer waterproof, its once fine buildings are going to decay, its pavements are full of holes, and its under-nourished people shrink from the prospect of joining the ranks of the literally starving.

The economic breakdown following a war that sucked deep of the nation's substance as well as drained its human blood was responsible at the outset, but the present conditions, or the lack of same efforts toward recovery, may justly be attributed to four years of Bolshevist mismanagement and radical experiment. It looks more and more as if the stranglehold of the Bolsheviki must be broken if Russia is not to revert to primitive conditions of savage struggle for food, with the weak daily falling before the weapons of the strong. For even the noble international effort to feed its starving can only postpone and can not avert a doom so manifestly impending. Successful revolt led by some Russians against the existing order would seem to be the only cure for ruin, and even that could come hardly out of the shadow of a vast and long-enduring tragedy.

The typical American, self-confident and assured, will smile at the suggestion that the great trading cities of even the more fortunate nations are threatened with a fate not unlike that of Petrograd, yet such is the view of some observers and it is. Wells includes New York, but notwithstanding its apparently "hopeless vitality," in the last "When one looks at New York," says the author of British water "its permanence is unreal, when one reflects we live on it as one lives on a great ship. With the possible exception of London, the position of New York seems to me the most perilous of that of any city of the world. What is happening to the economic world of people if the trade that feeds it ebbs." The world's economic life civilization embodied in the great towns, is disintegrating and collapsing through the strain of the modern war threat and of the disunited control of modern affairs."

In our confidence we may smile, but even while we smile it would be wise to remember that the nations of the world are interdependent as never before, that world-trade is now vital to every great nation, that we can not escape effects of Europe's economic breakdown following after exhausting war, and that self-interest alone should incline us to join mightily in making war upon war.

Quoting "one of the great preachers" as saying that "you can judge the temper of a man by the fashion in which he faces the inevitable," the New York Evening Post adds: "Among the men who peddle gloom, who sing doleful songs one hears when things go badly or do not go at all, there are those whose who calmly 'plug along' without whimpering or sign of fear. Even when they seem to fail, these are winning the only victory that counts."

COUNCIL CAN'T REFUSE ABER

Judge Seeger Holds That Newburgh Aldermen Have No Power To Withhold Permit From Bus Line —Kingston and Other Cities Affected.

The fallacy of the position which for a long time was assumed by the Kingston common council that it had the power to refuse applications to run bus lines on the grounds that there was no public necessity for them, is pointed out by Supreme Court Justice Albert H. F. Seeger of Newburgh in a case which recently arose in that city in which he grants a peremptory writ of mandamus compelling the city council of Newburgh to issue a consent.

The action against Mayor Leonard and the city council of Newburgh was brought by Daniel G. Aber, whose application to operate a bus line between Newburgh and Middletown had been refused by the city council on the ground that there was no public necessity for it. Judge Seeger holds that only the public service commission of the state has power to determine that question.

In his memorandum on the matter Judge Seeger says:

This is an application for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the city council of the city of Newburgh to issue a consent to the relator, Daniel G. Aber; to operate a bus line between said city and the city of Middletown, in Orange county.

The city council adopted an ordinance March 14, 1921, specifying the terms upon which said applications would be granted. The relator made application for such consent, pursuant to section 26 of the Transportation Corporations Law, and a hearing was had thereon, after which his application was refused. In answering affidavits such refusal seems to have been based upon the ground that the bus line was not a public necessity and not for the best interests of the city of Newburgh nor the citizens of said city.

The applicant contends that the council in refusing the consent applied for is usurping the power of the state public service commission in passing upon the question as to the public necessity for the proposed bus line and that it has no power to refuse the consent; that its powers are limited to fixing the terms upon which the consent should be granted.

The precise question raised does not seem to have been passed upon by the courts of this state. I am informed, however, that the attorney general of the state has recently delivered an opinion upon a similar question, arising in the city of Kingston to the effect that the city has only the power to prescribe the terms upon which the application should be granted, and that the questions of public necessity and convenience should be determined by the public service commission.

The United States District Court, District of Connecticut, recently said in the case of Lane et al v. Whitaker et al, reported in The New York Law Journal of Septe[illegible] 21: "The citizen has the right to [illegible] upon the highways and may transport his property thereon in the ordinary course of life and business, but this is a very different thing than permitting the highway to be used for commercial purposes as a place of business for profit-making in running [illegible]. The right, common to all, to the use of highways is the ordinary use thereof, but where, for private gain, a person wants a special and extraordinary benefit from the highways, to use it for such purposes of business, the legislature may, in the exercise of its police power, prohibit such use, or it may permit it in some and deny it in others, and this is because of the extraordinary nature of such use. And where the legislature grants the permission to use the highways it may also so order as to minimize where not completely do away with the danger to all applicants. This may compel [illegible] or make the license void or [illegible] done, the legislature may [illegible] and conditions which [illegible] control. This it has done in the act in question by providing that a body created under the law, the Public Utilities Commission, may make such rules and regulations and grant such license when public convenience and necessity require it."

The Public Utilities Commission of the state of Connecticut is a body with powers similar to the Public Service Commission of this state. The legislative act of the state of Connecticut, the validity of which was the subject of inquiry in the case above cited (chapter 77, Public Acts 1921 of the state of Connecticut), provided that "Section 5. No person, association or corporation shall operate a motor vehicle for the conveyance of persons for hire over any highway in this state without having obtained a certificate from the Public Utilities Commission authorizing the route over which such motor vehicle may operate and the service to be furnished, and that the public convenience and necessity require the operation over such route * * *."

It will be noted that under this statute no consent of the local authorities is required and that the legislature delegated the entire question to the Public Utilities Commission. Whereas in this state the legislature also requires the applicant to obtain the consent of the local authorities.

The Transportation Corporations Law, section 26, enumerates the conditions which the city council may prescribe, providing, in part, as follows: "No bus line * * * shall be operated wholly or partly upon or along any street, avenue or public place in any city, nor receive a certificate of public convenience and necessity until the owner or owners thereof shall have procured, after public notice and a hearing the consent of the local authorities of said city, as defined by the Railroad Law, to such operation, upon such terms and conditions as said local authorities may prescribe, which may include provisions covering description of route, rate of speed, compensation for wear and tear of pavement, improvements and bridges, safeguarding passengers and other persons using such streets. * * *."

It is evident that the city council in refusing the relator's application were of the opinion that they had the power and authority to refuse the application if, in their judgment, public necessity did not require the bus line, or if it were not for the best interests of the city and its inhabitants. The attorney general of the state, however, in his opinion, holds to the contrary.

I do not find any case reported in this state or any other state in which a city refused an application of this kind. It has evidently been considered for the best interests of the cities to encourage transportation facilities and to grant applications of this kind, because such means of transportation are generally for the best interests of the people. In many of the reported cases cities have permitted the operation of bus lines without requiring the certificate of the public service commission, required by statute.

It is true that the legislature, in the statute above quoted, as well as in the charter of the city of Newburgh, granted to the city the power to regulate the use of streets by persons and vehicles and to grant franchises or rights to use the streets, but I find no authority anywhere for the city to refuse the use of the streets to any citizen who is willing to abide by the rules and regulations which the city prescribes for the use of the same.

It is true that the state has the right to regulate the use of streets and even to refuse their use when public necessity and convenience so requires, but the power to make such refusal seems to be vested in the public service commission only.

The mandamus applied for should be granted, without costs, however, but the relator's legal disbursements should be paid by the city.

So ordered.

This case in Kingston which attracted considerable attention was that of Charles Proper of Rosendale, whose application to run a bus line between Kingston was repeatedly denied by the common council on the ground that there was no public necessity for it. Mr. Proper's attorney, Frank W. Brooks, continued to make applications after the opinion of the attorney general had been rendered, the vote by which the Proper consent was given standing 7 to 5.

The decision of Judge Seeger will be interesting as governing future petitions in Kingston and elsewhere. It does not seem likely, however, that the present council will have any further opportunity to try to pass on the question of public necessity of bus lines, but the next council undoubtedly will.

Answers To Previous Questions:

1. Is there some way to keep moths out of clothes?

Only by beating and cleaning the garments thoroughly and immediately wrapping them—practically sealed. While the moth-ball preparations repel the winged moths, they are powerless against eggs that may have been laid in the garment. These will hatch and the larvae eat the holes, unless the garment is well cleaned before wrapping. Drench infested carpet, stuffed furniture, mattresses, etc., in gasoline to kill larvae.

2. Recently after a heavy rain, an abundance of small frogs, lizards, and fish were found all over the ground. Were they dropped from the clouds?

No. Clouds hold air and moisture, not heavier-than-air organisms. The frogs (or toads) come to wet their tender skins, as we have explained earlier. They are hatched in water, and when young, need to keep damp for comfort. Fish might have been stranded after a sudden overflow of a pond or brook, and equally sudden draining. Some lizards are burrowers, and might come to the surface to get out of the flood temporarily.

3. At what time of year are bear cubs born?

In North America the cubs are born in January or February, and are extraordinarily small in proportion to the adult size—hardly ten inches long. The weight of a European brown bear at two days old was fifteen ounces.

RAILROAD PLAN TO GET RATES DOWN

Propose to Reduce Wages and Return All the Saving by Reduction in Charges.

FULL TEXT OF THE PROPOSAL

Statement by Thomas de Witt Cuyler, Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives on the Situation.

Following a meeting in Chicago, October 14, 1921, of the presidents of nearly all the leading railroads in the country, Mr. Thomas De Witt Cuyler, Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, made the following statement:

At a meeting of the Association of Railway Executives today, it was determined by the railroads of the United States, to seek to bring about a reduction in rates, and as a means to that end to seek a reduction in present railroad wages which have compelled maintenance of the present rates.

An application will be made immediately to the United States Railroad Labor Board for a reduction in wages of train service employees sufficient to remove the remainder of the increases made by the Labor Board's decision of July 20, 1920 (which would involve a further reduction of approximately ten per cent), and for a reduction in the wages of all other classes of railroad labor to the going rate for such labor in several territories where the carriers operate.

To Reduce Rates as Wages Go Down

The foregoing action is upon the understanding that concurrently with such reduction in wages the benefit of the reduction thus obtained shall, with the concurrence of the Interstate Commerce Commission be passed on to the public in the reduction of existing railroad rates, except in so far as this reduction shall have been made in the meantime.

The managements have decided upon this course in view of their realization of the fact that the wheels of industrial activity have been slowed down to a point which brings depression and distress to the entire public, and that something must be done to start them again in operation.

The situation which confronts the railroads is extremely critical. The railroads in 1920 realized a net railway operating income of about $62,000,000, upon a property investment of over $19,000,000,000, and even this amount of 62 millions included back mail pay for prior years received from the government of approximately $64,000,000, thus showing, when the operations of that year alone are considered, an actual deficit before making any allowance for either interest or dividends.

The year ended in serious depression in all branches of industry, and in marked reduction of the market demand for and the prices of basic commodities, resulting in a very serious falling off in the volume of traffic.

Roads Forced to Defer Maintenance Work

In this situation, a policy of the most rigid economy and of postponing and cutting to the bone the upkeep of the properties was adopted by the railroads. This was at the price of neglecting and for the time deferring work which must hereafter and in the near future be done and paid for. This is illustrated by the fact that, as of September 15, 1921, over 16 per cent or 374,431 in number, of the freight cars of the carriers were in bad order and needing repairs, as against a normal of bad order cars of not more than 160,000, as is further illustrated by the deferred and inadequate maintenance of other equipment and of roadway and structures.

Even under those conditions, and with this large bill charged up against the future,—which must soon be provided for and paid if the carriers are to perform successfully their transportation duties,—the result of operations for the first eight months of this year, the latest available figures, has been at a rate of net railway operating income before providing for interest or dividends, amounting to only 2.6 per cent, per annum on the valuation of the carrier properties made by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the recent rate case, an amount not sufficient to pay the interest on their outstanding bonds.

Roads' Earnings Far Below Reasonable Return

It is manifest, from this showing that the rate of return of 5½ or 6 per cent for the first two years after March 1, 1920 fixed in the Transportation Act as a minimum reasonable return upon railroad investment, has not been even approximated, much less reached, and that the present high rates accordingly are not due to any statutory guarantee of earnings, for there is no such guarantee.

In analyzing the expenses which have largely brought about this situation, it becomes evident that by far the largest contributing cause is the labor cost.

Today the railroads pay out to labor approximately 60c on the dollar they receive for transportation services, whereas in 1916 40c on the dollar went to labor.

On the first day of January, 1917, when the government took charge of wages through the Adamson Act, the labor cost of the railroads had not exceeded the sum of about $1,400,000,000 annually. In 1920, when governmental authority made the last wage increase, the labor cost of the railroads was about $3,[illegible] annually, or, if continued throughout the year instead of for the eight months during which the wage increases were in effect, the labor cost, on an annual basis would have been largely in excess of $[illegible] an increase, since the government took charge of railroad wages in the Adamson Act, of approximately $2,450,000,000 annually.

In the light of these figures, it is manifest that the recent reduction of wages authorized by the Labor Board, estimated at from 10 to 12 per cent in no sense meets or solves the problem of labor costs and in no way makes it possible for the railroads to afford a reduction in their revenues.

Thousands of Rates Already Reduced

Indeed, during the past year there have been between four and five thousand individual reductions in freight rates. On some railroads the reductions in rates have amounted to more than the reductions in wages so far made, and on many other railroads the reductions in wages allowed no net return on operations, but merely provided against the further accumulation of a deficit.

The point is often made that agriculture and other industries are also suffering the same immediate difficulties as the railroads, why, therefore, do not the railroads take their medicine like anybody else? The answer lies in several facts:

1. The railroads were not permitted, as were other industries, to make charges during the years of prosperity, making possible the accumulation of a surplus to tide them over the present extreme adversity. According to the reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the rate of return on property investment of the railroads of the United States for the past several years has been as follows:

RATE OF RETURN EARNED BY RAILROADS OF THE UNITED STATES ON THEIR PROPERTY INVESTMENT.

1912	4.84%
1913	5.15%
1914	4.17%
1915	4.20%
1916 (fiscal year)	5.90%
1916 (calendar year)	6.10%
1917	5.26%
1918	3.51%
1919	2.46%
1920	0.22%

It will thus be noted that during the years when other industries were making very large profits, when the prices of farm products and the wages of labor were soaring to unheard-of heights, the earnings upon railroad investment in the United States were held within very narrow limits and that they have during the past four years progressively declined.

Roads Handicapped More Than Other Business

2. The railroads are responsible to the public for providing adequate transportation. Their charges are limited by public authority, and they are in very large measure (notably for labor) compelled to spend money on a basis fixed by public authority. The [illegible] which they are permitted to earn a return upon their investment [illegible] inducement to attract [illegible] capital for extensions and better[illegible] is extremely limited. However much the railroads might desire, therefore, to reduce their charges in times of depression, it will be perceived that the limitations surrounding their [illegible] do not permit them to give effect [illegible] and elastic policies which might [illegible] properly govern other lines [illegible] is restricted.

[illegible] urged upon the railroads [illegible] reduction in rates will stimulate [illegible] and that increased traffic [illegible] protect the carriers from the loss [illegible] to a reduction in rates. The [illegible] cannot disprove [illegible] but the suggestion is [illegible] and that an adverse [illegible] would be disastrous [illegible] to the railroads, but [illegible] supreme need is [illegible] Consequently [illegible] managements cannot feel [illegible] instrumentals [illegible] to the public welfare [illegible] an experiment based solely upon such a conjecture

Farmers Especially Need Lower Rates

It is evident, however, that existing transportation charges bear in many cases a disproportionate relationship to the prices at which commodities can be sold in the market and that existing labor and other costs of transportation thus imposed upon industry and agriculture generally a burden greater than they should bear. This is especially true of agriculture. The railroad managements are feeling sensitive to and sympathetic with the distressing situation and desire to do everything to assist in relieving it that is compatible with their duty to furnish the transportation which the public must have.

At the moment railroads in many cases are paying 40c an hour for unskilled labor when similar labor is working alongside the railroads and can easily be obtained by them at 20c an hour. The railroads of the country paid in 1920 a total of considerably over $1,300,000,000 to unskilled labor alone. However desirable it may be to pay this or that schedule of wages, it is obvious that it cannot be paid out of railroad earnings unless the industries which use the railroads are capable of meeting such charges.

The railroads and through them the people generally, are also hampered in their efforts to economize by a schedule of working rules and conditions now in force as a heritage from the period of Federal control and upheld by the Railroad Labor Board. These conditions are expensive, uneconomic and unnecessary from the point of view of railroad operation and extremely burdensome upon the public which pays the bill. This schedule of wages and of working conditions prevents the railroads from dealing equitably with their labor costs in accordance with rapidly changing conditions and the great variety of local considerations which ought to control wages in different parts of the country. The railroads are seeking to have these rules and working conditions abrogated.

The railroads will seek a reduction in wages now proposed by first requesting the sanction of the Railroad Labor Board. The railroads will proceed with all possible dispatch, and as soon as the Railroad Labor Board shall have given its assent to the reduction of wages the general reduction in rates will be put into effect.

Sun's Effect on Glass Palace.

It has been found impossible to give accurate dimensions of the Crystal palace, London, because of the contraction the building undergoes during the day. In the case of the palace, the approximate length of the main structure of which is 1,292 feet, a measurement taken at noon would exceed the dimension which would be given on a remeasurement in the evening, when the "contraction" consequent upon the absence of heat, as the result of the sun having set, would have taken place. The difference at times amounts to as much as six inches.

All of European Origin.

A dumpling is a good old English dish, and comes from the word dumpen, that meant to throw down suddenly, and the diminutive ending "ling." The idea was a little cake that was made in throwing raw dough into boiling water. From Portugal comes the word marmalade, which was originally a sweet preserve made from quinces and takes its name from marmelo, the Portuguese name for that fruit. Cruller is a good Yankee dish though it is from an old German or Dutch word "krullen," meaning little curled cake.

Indian Individuality.

It is a matter of some psychological interest to note that the occidental idea is entirely foreign to Hindu mentality. That is, when a number play or sing together, all sound the same note at the same time, or if some times happens that each singer or player according to his own sweet will. But such a conception as that of making one harmonious whole by means of each playing or singing a different part has never occurred to any mind in India—an apt illustration of the innate individuality which obtains in India.

[illegible] of Trouble

In spite of the large number of unsettled questions before the world the type of mentality is still to be found that regards itself as doing [illegible] a favor by digging up new problems.—Washington Star.

HIGHLAND BUS NOW EFFICIENT

New Management Trying to Serve the Public—Bus Makes All Trips on Regular Schedule.

Under new management, the Kingston-Highland motor bus line is being operated efficiently and on schedule time. This bus line started all right but fell into the hands of a man who paid little attention to schedules or even terminals, frequently failing to reach the Kingston terminal at all. Fortunately the line has again changed ownership and is now operated with a view to giving good service. The driver is careful, efficient and as polite as a man can be who has to run a transportation line on schedule time. A better bus than was formerly in use is now operated and a still better one will be put on as soon as the business justifies it. It is also possible that commutation tickets will soon be sold at a reduced rate.

The daily schedule, which is adhered to as closely as possible, is as follows:

Leave Kingston, Central Terminal, near West Shore crossing—8:30 and 11:30 a. m.; 3:10 and 5:30 p. m.

Leave Highland—7 and 10 a. m.; 1 and 4:30 p. m.

Of course there is occasional delay caused by the ferry, but as soon as the Rondout Creek Bridge is open this will end.

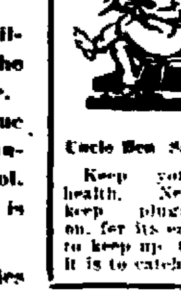
BLADDER TROUBLES IN CHILDREN

Monday Health Talk No. 45
By Froude & MacKinnon, D's. C.



Uncle Ben Says:
Keep your health, Nevvy, keep plugging on, for its easier to keep up than it is to catch up.

One of the commonest ailments among children is bedwetting. Insufficient control at the bladder outlet in many cases is the cause. Sometimes weakened kidneys place an undue burden on the bladder and the child in the unconsciousness of sleep is not capable of control. To punish a child under such circumstances is little less than criminal.

The cause lies in the spine, and the muscles and ligaments of children are so elastic and flexible, that quick results are noted under chiropractic spinal adjustments. When the pressure on the spinal nerves is removed, normal control of the kidneys and bladder follows. Of course cases of long standing, even in children, will not respond so quickly.

RECOVERS IN FEW WEEKS.

"My little boy, aged six, was troubled with bedwetting and had no control of himself. He took chiropractic spinal adjustments for two weeks and the trouble was relieved. Today the boy shows no signs of a return of the trouble and we credit Chiropractic." Findlay Walsh, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 12871

HILL'S C. B. Q. Tablets [illegible]
Try this simple experiment:
1. Drop a C. B. Q. Tablet in a glass of water.
2. Instantly the tablet begins disintegrating or "breaking up."
3. In 15 seconds the medical properties are thoroughly mixed with water.

Thus Hill's C. B. Q. Tablets act immediately, give relief without delay and begin checking Colds and La Grippe long before ordinary tablets, by actual test, are absorbed by the stomach juices. To prove this, subject other than C. B. Q. Tablets to the test and you will see that a good [illegible] is required for complete disintegration.

Moon Winks.

A full moon floated overhead
'Twas full as full could be;
A mongrel pup sat looking up
And whined most piteously.

He shook the midnight silence
With his canine repertoire,
In true dog fashion such as you
Have doubtless heard before.

Who'd criticise this little dog
Or hold he was to blame,
A very little moonshine, and
You'd do somewhat the same.

Now that the football season is upon us, doctors are beginning to buy new cars.

The lady bank clerk had completed her first week and a friend asked her how she liked the work.

"Oh, it's beautiful," said the girl. "I'm at a branch where nearly all the people we know have accounts, and it's so nice to see how little money some of your friends have in the bank."

How They Did It.

An old farmer and his wife lived near the village church. One warm Sunday evening while they sat dozing on the porch the crickets set up a loud chirping.

"I just love to hear that chirpin' noise," said the old man drowsily, and before the crickets had stopped he was fast asleep.

Soon after the church choir broke into a beautiful chant.

"Just listen to that," exclaimed his wife "ain't that beautiful?"

"Yes," murmured the old farmer sleepily, "they do it with their hind legs."

Opportunity knocks, but temptation kicks the door in.

A doctor, attending an old gentleman, had instructed the butler in the art of taking and recording his master's temperature.

One morning on arriving at the house the doctor ran into the butler.

"I hope," said he, "that your master's temperature is no higher."

"I was just hoping that myself, sir," said the butler solemnly. "You see he died an hour or two ago."

Feast of St. Thomas.

It was in the twelfth century that e feast of St. Thomas was instituted. d in connection with the practice of oing a gooding" on that day there as a kindred custom in vogue—the dvent images—consisting of two dolls ressed, the one to represent the aviour and the other the Virgin Mary. uring the week before Christmas ey were carried about the country by poor woman, who, in return for their xhibition, expected a halfpenny. It as considered the height of ill luck refuse this. The bearers of the mages sang a song descriptive of e seven joys which the virgin moth- experienced. If no household was isited by the image-bearers before hristmas eve it was considered to retage misfortune. This gave rise the expression, "as unhappy as the an who has seen no Advent images." —Chicago Journal.

Old Saw Traced to Cervantes.

"Dead men tell no tales," was one the many wise old saws in the im- ortal "Don Quixote" of the greatest Spanish writers, Miguel de Cervan- s (1547-1616), sometimes translated "Death is deaf." The words "Dead en tell no tales" also occur in a em called "The Pilgrim of Glencoe," the Scottish poet, Thomas Camp- ell (1777-1844). "Dead men bite not," an old saying, long current in Scot- nd. In Holland and in Germany ey say "Dead dogs bite not." "That ad men rise up never" is a line from The Garden of Proserpine," by the nglish poet Algernon Charles Swin- rne (1837-1909). The meaning, in hatever form, is obvious enough: hat when a man is dead, he is danger- us to nobody.

Sources of Dickens' Names.

It seems surprising that the name of ickens' characters, odd though they re, should be found in real life; for was from life that many of them re taken. Some, as is known, were rived from the names of signs over siness places; but that was not the velist's only source of selection. hn Forster, his biographer, found- ng his papers, a carefully drawn t of names, with the sources from hich he obtained them. Some of the mes are too extravagant for any- ing but reality; Jolly Stick, Bill riggold, George Manide, William ry, Robert Gospel, Robbin Scrubbers, rah Goldrocks, Catherine Two, Su- an Doomsday, Rosetta Dust and iz Grabbett.

"Plumage Transformation."

A type of plumage transformation hich appears to have a very clear rotective purpose, is what is known s the "eclipse of the male." It is ticularly characteristic of many orders of ducks, the two sexes of hich ordinarily have distinct plum- e. Most ducks moult their flight athers all at one time, with the sult that they are quite unable to y for a term of several weeks after breeding season. During this riod they live retired lives among e secluded waterways of their nest- g haunts, waiting for a growth of w quills to equip them for their ture migration.

Mr. William Alexander,
130 West 46th St.,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

Your production of THE THREE MUSKETEERS which has been viewed by the Matinee Association was recommended by our entire body to all the school teachers and principals of Greater New York.

In checking up our records, we find that some one hundred and twenty-eight classes attended your performances at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, and the Academy of Music, Brooklyn; this totaling over five thousand children from public and high schools. In addition, there were over twelve thousand children from all grades of schools which attended independently of their classes.

This, I am sure, speaks well of your production and I heartily endorse same as one meeting with the approval of all the school boards and of great entertainment value outside of its educational qualities.

Very truly yours,

SAVORY DISHES.

Calves' hearts are tender and delicious, cut in slices and fried in a little butter. They should be cooked until well browned and served with the gravy which may be thickened or not.

Braised Liver.—Wash two pounds of fresh liver and flour well, seasoning with salt and pepper and a little lemon juice. Lay in a casserole; add two sliced onions and six carrots shredded lengthwise, a bay leaf, a sprinkling of parsley and a pint of boiling water. Place thin slices of bacon over all; cover tightly and bake for one hour and a half; then remove the cover, baste and brown ten minutes. Serve with tomatoes or chili sauce.

Fried Peppers With Cheese.—Cheese large green peppers and blister them in the oven until they peel easily. Remove the seeds and veins and wrap each pepper around a piece of cheese. Fry in good sweet lard or butter, or better, olive oil. Prepare a sweet sauce of browned butter, flour, a flavor of garlic, to pour over the peppers when ready to serve.

Baked Mexican Chicken.—Steam two young chickens for 20 minutes, then cut up as for fricassee. Strain a can of tomatoes; mix with a can of corn; add one green pepper chopped, a little parsley, cayenne pepper and paprika. Put the chicken into this mixture; thicken with bread crumbs and bake with pieces of butter over the top, for half an hour.

Ripe Pear Salad.—Cut pears in halves and scoop out the core with a potato scoop, leaving a good-sized, perfectly round cavity. Make cream cheese balls, season them well before rolling, and dust with paprika. Fill the cavity with the ball, arrange on lettuce and serve with a French dressing prepared with some of the pear juice if possible. Canned pears may be used for this recipe.

Muskmelons may be served the same way, using just the melon or a combination of melon and banana, if desired.

Miracles are good, but to relieve a brother, to draw a friend from the depths of misery, to pardon the virtues of an enemy, these are greater miracles.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS.

A tender well-seasoned and cooked tongue is one of the most tasty of meats.

Beef Tongue en Casserole.—Choose a tongue which has been slightly corned, remove all the rough portions, rub with flour to which has been added a dash of ginger and allspice. Fry a few slices of salt pork, then add a sliced onion and the tongue, tying it into shape. Flour it lightly on all sides. Make a cupful of gravy, adding the juice of a lemon, three tablespoonfuls of shredded almonds, and a half cupful of seeded raisins. Put the tongue in a round casserole, pour over the gravy and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven. Untie the tongue, turn out on a platter and serve with the gravy over it.

Rhubarb is delicious baked. Take a cupful of sugar to a pint of finely cut rhubarb. Bake in an earthen dish until jellylike in consistency.

Fruit juices which lack the thickening quality called pectin, may be supplied with it by using the white pith of an orange peel. Remove all the rind and cut it in strips, cover with cold water and simmer for an hour or two to remove all the pectin and boil up again. There will be sufficient pectin in half an orange rind to thicken several glasses of jelly.

Iced Cocoa.—Put two heaping teaspoonfuls of cocoa into a double boiler, add half of a pint of boiling water and cook five minutes; add one-half pint of milk, heat thoroughly and take from the fire. At serving time fill the glasses one-third full of chipped ice, add a teaspoonful of powdered sugar, fill the glass two-thirds full of cocoa and top with whipped cream.

Oatmeal Cookies.—Take two cupfuls of browned and ground oatmeal, two cupfuls of flour, one egg, one-half cupful of sour milk, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful of shortening and a cupful of sugars add raisins and nuts and drop from a teaspoon on a well-greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven until firm to the touch.

Our country's prosperity was built up by industry and thrift. Our forbears had a lust for work and accomplishment. RECIPES WORTH SAVING.

Those who do not enjoy a thick mayonnaise will like this salad dressing, which will keep indefinitely.

Boiled Salad Dressing.—Beat the yolks of seven eggs until thick and lemon-colored; drop three tablespoonfuls of olive oil slowly, beating continually; add one-half cupful of melted butter and continue beating; add one-half cupful of vinegar and the juice of one lemon, slowly. Cook in a double boiler until it coats the spoon. Remove from the heat and sift in the following ingredients, which have been thoroughly blended: One and one-half tablespoonfuls of mustard, one-half teaspoonful of white pepper, one-eighth teaspoonful of cayenne pepper, three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Mix well and, when using the dressing, add whipped cream.

Potato Salad.—Boil eight medium-sized potatoes in their jackets, peel and cut in one-quarter-inch cubes; add two cucumbers, cut in the same sized cubes, one cupful of blanched and shredded almonds, two tablespoonfuls each of red and green peppers, chopped fine, with one small onion, also chopped. Serve with the above boiled dressing.

Beet Salad.—Take a pint or more of the small cooked beets, finely diced, add one pound of shelled pecans, broken in bits; serve with the boiled dressing, colored a light pink, using the beet liquor. The beets are best if marinated for several hours in a small amount of French dressing.

French Dressing.—Add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar, a dash of cayenne to three tablespoonfuls of oil and one of vinegar; mix well before using.

Chicken Salad.—Cut cold boiled fowl into half-inch dice; add an equal quantity of tender celery, cut in pieces, one cupful of broken bits of hickory nut meats. Chop the skin of the chicken very fine and add to the salad. Mix well with a boiled dressing and garnish with hard-cooked eggs cut in eighths, and curled celery.

No Success Without Effort.

It's seldom you can do what you want to do the first time you try. To be sure if you have been working along a given line there may not be any difficulty in your doing what is comparatively new without trouble. On the other hand there are few people who are gifted enough to walk off with the palm the first time the task comes up. Failure is not so much a matter of lack of ability as it is of unorganized effort. When young men learn to plod along until they are masters of the thing they would do there will be no question about success. Too many want to succeed without effort. Nature is a little slow in rewarding such.—Grit.

Feeding the Poinsettia.

The florists were long puzzled by the problem of bringing all their poinsettia plants in full bloom for the holiday season. In time a solution was offered by Dr. W. W. Gardner and H. H. Allard of the United States Department of Agriculture, who discovered that by regulating the amount of light which was allowed to reach the plants, the blossoming date could be speeded or retarded at pleasure. If the sunshine is allowed to fall upon the young poinsettia only a few hours each day, it evidently takes the lack of light for the approach of the shortest day and puts all its efforts into blooming before the end of the year.

Origin of Popular Confections.

Nobody seems to know what waffle came from, but it was probably derived from the word wafl, and it can be imagined that it might have been due to some similarity between the warm cake and the hard covering. Fudge is from an old French word meaning to fry or a dish of fried fish, which comes directly from the Latin fritillus, the pot partridge of the west Indies. Waffle comes from wafer and wafer comes from the German word wabe, a honeycomb or a cake of wax, originally wafers seem to have been hot cakes like modern waffles. The association of the word wafer with extreme thinness is of modern origin.

IS SACRED SPOT

All France in Tribute at Grave of Unknown Soldier.

All Classes, All Types, Represented in Unceasing Stream Around Simple Slab of Stone.

The prayers of the faithful go up unceasingly.

No vestal lights are here, no sacred shades of some cathedral aisle, that every one should speak so softly, tread so light. But there is a simple slab of stone upon which flowers are scattered, all radiant in the sunlight of a summer morning.

The busy holiday traffic of the Parisian Sunday sweeps unceasingly in every direction across the great Place de l'Etoile. But here in the heart of it all is a little hushed oasis where women cross themselves, where men bare and bow their heads, where even the laughter of little children is stilled in wonderment, for here at the sepulcher of an unknown warrior a nation has enshrined the memory of a million dead, and here, above all hallowed places in the land of France, a nation's prayers are said. F. A. Hubbell writes in the continental edition of the London Mail.

The sunlight of a new-born day had hardly flung its gold upon the great triumphal arch which rears itself so proudly over the grave of the unknown before the first of the tribute bringers arrived. They came, but in ones and twos, so early in the morning, lingered a little while, and, dropping flower offerings, passed on their way.

Gradually the city wakened. Motor cars came sweeping up the broad avenue of the Champs-Elysees, trams and busses emerged from every converging thoroughfare. Crowds passed to the great pleasure ground of the Bois de Boulogne. Others went farther afield for their holiday, but thousands here had reached their journey's end. They wished to go no farther than this little slab of stone.

The sun mounts higher in the sky and those who press about the flower-sprinkled spot increase in numbers. Two cues are formed. Each winds about the base of the majestic arch on either side. In slow and never-ending procession they converge beneath it before the space of sacred ground.

Noon has gone and still the slow stream of peoples passes. All ages, all classes, all types are represented. Here a widow in somber black who for a second breaks away from the stream to kneel and lay her little bunch of lilies of the valley on the tomb. An aged man, who leans heavily on a stick, pauses, bares his head with trembling hand and passes on. A girl, white coiffured, from some distant province, has reached the end of her pilgrimage. She brought flowers with her from the little village, did her best to keep them fresh and fragrant on the way. All fluttering, she drops them on the flower-sprinkled stone. A soldier, in the sky-blue uniform of France, straightens himself to "attention," salutes and goes his way.

A woman, beautifully robed, whose motor car with noiseless engine, drew up to the curb an hour ago, has reached the grave. She seldom waits for anything; she has never waited in a cue. But here all are equal and she has taken her turn with the humblest. Her tribute of exquisite roses is not more fragrant than the tiniest violet spray.

It is evening and from the Champs-Elysees Napoleon's triumphal arch upon the hilltop, wrapped in the glory of the setting sun, would seem the entrance to some celestial region.

Men and women are still passing before the sepulcher, by this time hidden quite beneath a pyre of many-colored blossoms which seem almost to burn in the crimson evening glow.

The restless, rushing human tide that surged over the great open space is waning and the silence about the tomb is more profound.

Those who wait to pay their tribute are fewer now, but as they pass onward from the arch toward the west the eye is blinded by the dazzling light that envelops them.

And in the majestic symbolism of hill-top arch and blazoned sky, an unknown soldier who gave his life for his friends, holds the portals through which men pass to a promised land.

MORGANWECK GETS PLAYERS AND NET

Kingston Manager Making Good Progress In Getting Team Fit To Cope With Others On Short Notice—The Official List Sent To President Stotz—Asks Wednesday Night As Home Night—To Improve Armory Seating.

Manager Frank Morganweck, manager of the Kingston basket ball team of the state league writes The Freeman from College Point, L. I., as follows:

Since our game in Kingston last Wednesday night, I have been away scouting for several more players and also securing a new net or at least new sides. I have succeeded in both. According to league rules, today is the last day, that each team can carry as many players as they wish. Tomorrow Monday the 14th all players signed or reserved must be in the hands of the league president. Thereafter no new player can be used until he has been signed seven days and also approved by the president. For this reason, I have been working to get all my players in line and just returned from Philadelphia and Trenton in time to send our list to President Stotz in Schenectady.

Here is the list. Forwards, M. Husta, C. Husta and Curiette; centres, Spalt, Lehr and Lansing; guards, Henschel, Penino (also coach) Turano and Dolson. This takes in our full allotment. Out of this list three have not been in Kingston yet and two will be there and probably in the game Wednesday night against Schenectady. Lansing will surely jump centre part of the game and Turano will no doubt play guard. Both of these boys hail from Trenton and were watched by our old Centreman Tome. Both are supposed to be aggressive and fast players. Lansing has been playing in the Eastern League playing with Germantown last season on which team Frankel one of our old time favorites was playing. This team is not in the Eastern League this season and Lansing has been playing independent ball so far.

Turano started his playing in Trenton, then went to Mersersburg Academy and from there to Dickerson College and has been extra man on the Trenton Eastern League team last year and so far this season he comes recommended as being very aggressive and fast and if he comes up to what his friends say he is, we will be able to use him just right. The other man (Lehr) probably is the most experienced one of the three. Lehr was centre on the Wilkes-Barre team several years ago when Curlett was the captain of the team and this team won the Pennsylvania State League championship. Curlett as well as Penino and Frankel have been assisting me in trying to secure him. He finally agreed to come but must first arrange for leave of absence which may take some little time. If we get him, it will be the best news of all. I think however that I can safely say right now that we will get started now and I feel sure once we get going we will keep going. It has been a hard fight to get a team together in such a short notice. We have really only had two weeks now to do it, but the hardest part is over and I think, in a short time we will bring Kingston where it belongs on the basket ball map.

There was a league meeting in Schenectady Sunday November 13. I could not get back in time to attend it but wired that we would take Wednesday night as our home night with as many holidays as possible. The main work was to draw up a schedule for the first half of the season and arrange the reserve list of players etc.

The improvement of the two Husta boys, in fact their showing altogether has been a pleasant a surprise to me as anything I have had in the way of surprises. Both these boys have had no league experience before coming up playing only independent basketball. I know they were good material but expected a slow development, but they have practically made good from the start, and if the other new men will be able to keep pace with them, I know we will have as fast a team as any of the others.

When the new net is in place so the seating can be re-arranged, reserved seats will be placed around the net. At present no plan has been made because the resetting of the net will make it necessary to renumber the seats and also place them different. Announcement will be made when reserved seats will be installed. I am also working to secure bleachers on one or both ends and expect to close a deal soon to send up enough for five or six rows on at least the further end of the armory and if possible on both sides so that we will have ample accommodations for all to see comfortable. As we go along, we will try and improve wherever we can and any suggestions will be gladly considered.

Unlimited Phone Talkfests.

The present telephone system of Berlin, as well as of all Germany, is continued on the gloriously unhampered system that obtained during the childhood of telephones in the United States. The number of calls is unlimited, and the young German thing who wants to tell her best friend all about "what he said" last night, can do it to her heart's content if her big brother don't rattle his best friend a joke that he heard last night, or her mother don't exchange recipes. There is talk of the metered system, but the inhabitants of Berlin are protesting vigorously. They say that "inflation has gone far enough, and that they want to be able at least to talk without bankruptcy proceedings.

Simple Rule to Remember.

When should "your" be used, and when should "you're" be in earnest, for example, to say "I have to 'your' them 100 methods"? The rule to avoid this problem is simple to remember that "your" is used when referring to possession—as in "the above example—and "you're" when referring to geometry.

INSIST ON "LIFE FOR LIFE"

Natives of New Guinea Cannot Be Reasoned Out of Custom Established Long Ago.

Far in the mountain fastnesses of New Guinea our party came upon a little huddle of huts that appeared deserted, writes Temple Manning in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Experience had taught us caution, so we waited until my impatience led me to advance with one of our bearers. Instantly an amazing thing happened. From the nearest hut three natives emerged, crawling on their hands and knees, stopping every few feet to knock their heads upon the ground. I soon discovered the reason. I was the first white man they had ever seen.

For days they would not permit us to leave. At last, when we insisted on parting, six of them joined our party to accompany us to the coast.

Everything went smoothly until one of them fell into a stream and was drowned. His fellowmen approached us threateningly; they held us responsible for the man's death. They wailed and demanded payment. We offered them armlets, colored dishes and cloths, but they would not be appeased. They wanted a life for a life.

As quickly as we could we made the nearest coast settlement, and barked upon a "pram" and went back to civilization. Later I learned that, after the invariable custom of their race, the dead man's brother hung about the coast until he had killed a white man.

His brother's death was avenged—a under had paid the price.

Sea Chameleons.

There are no more talented camouflage artists than some kinds of tropical seafish. A scientist who has been making a study of their color phases says some of them can take on in turn the hues of coral, rocks, seaweed, sand, almost instantly making themselves invisible to the hunting enemy. They are enabled to do this by the remarkable nervous control of the chromatophores under the skin with which nature has favored them. The scotch has four color phases, the dragonet four; that fascinating family of the goby, the urogeniatus, three; while the red grouper displays six and the Nassau grouper can actually provide the astonished spectator with a pictorial progress through eight colors.

Altitude.

Altitude is necessary to the vertical height of any point or body above the horizon. It is measured or estimated by the angle enclosing between the object and the plane of the horizon, and may be either true or apparent. The apparent altitude is that which is elevated immediately from observation; the true altitude, that which results from correcting the apparent altitude, by making allowance for parallax, refraction, etc.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

Perhaps the chief lesson to be learned from a study of economic conditions in Europe to-day is that the principal safeguard of national stability, progress and happiness is hard work.

What all humanity needs is the spirit of willing work. This may seem a somewhat anomalous statement when we think of the hundreds of thousands of workers who are idle in this country to-day, but American unemployment is only a passing phase of the economic situation. The fact still remains that progress is based very largely on mankind's willingness to work.

These observations are made after a period of seven weeks spent in a study of European conditions where the root of disorder undoubtedly consists of a somewhat widespread unwillingness to get down to the brass tacks of hard work. One sees in Europe too much of a tendency to spin out jobs so that four or five men are paid for what one man really should earn, too much dependence on the government to provide the necessities of life without a corresponding willingness to work for them; and too great a tendency to haggle over conditions and demand the final farthing.

This does not mean that all the workmen who are idle abroad are in that condition from choice. The voluntary idleness of one group of men often causes the involuntary idleness of many others, and work for one section of labor often means work for many more. There are said to be 2,000,000 men idle in the building trades in the United States to-day, and it is safe to assert that if all these men could secure employment it would not be many days until every working man in America who desired a job could get it.

Idleness also has a deteriorating effect on morale. The happiest people are those who work; the unhappiest are those who are idle whether it be voluntary or enforced. Of the sum total of unemployment in Europe, some of it is unnecessary and is the direct result of governmental coddling. The spirit of hard work is necessary to human happiness and social progress, and any nation that attempts to solve its economic problems by any other means is temporizing. No nation of hard workers ever failed.

Wisdom From the Far East.

The welfare of nations and the happiness of mankind as our deepest principle as ordinary intelligence, glory as a commonplace powerful shrewd; [illegible] to labor, thrift, consideration for our neighbors and patient obedience. The latter are unessential subjects to life, but the most important for which we can strive, fortune, prodigality, entertainment, luxury—these we must root out of our hearts.—Hsu Shih-Chang.

Success.

"The real men ever reaches what he calls 'success,'" said one of the biggest business men in this country. No one with high ideals is ever satisfied with his own achievement. With every high point gained, some higher point still looms ahead. Because the high spirit reaches earth's last boundary and finds the goal still unattained, there must be new opportunities still waiting beyond. While Daniel Cramer of 132 East Chester street was driving his Hudson car going west on Foxhall avenue, Theodore Lord of 64 Emerick street, driving a Chevrolet, came out of Stephan street Sunday afternoon. The two cars collided. The Chevrolet hit the Hudson in the rear turning it completely around and in front of the Hupmobile of N. Kaprielian of 261 Flatbush avenue, who was driving east on Foxhall avenue. The Hup struck the Hudson in the rear. All three cars were badly damaged but no one was hurt. Riding in Lord's car were William Moon of 89 Gage street, Edna Lord of Emerick street and Helen Jones of 109 Farrelly street. In Cramer's car was riding Florence Diamond of 153 Hunter street.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 4.—The stock market was irregular in the early dealings today. Most of the leading issues opened higher but receded from 1 to 2 points. The Steel issues were heavy. United States Steel fell ⅝ to 83 while losses of more than a point suffered in Crucible, Republic Steel and Bethlehem Steel. Mexican Petroleum started ⅛ higher at 111⅝ and then broke to 113½. Studebaker opened ⅝ higher at 74⅝, and then lost all of this gain. Standard Oil of New Jersey showed a gain of 3¼ points to 179. There was little activity in the rail shares.

The pressure became more pronounced in mid-afternoon, selling of large blocks of stocks from many sources causing many sharp declines.

The market closed weak, government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

UNITED STATES LEADS IN RADIUM PRODUCTION

Importance of Mines of Bohemia Exaggerated, Says Metal Specialist.

Despite reports from London telling of a radium corner executed by British interests when they acquired the product of Czechoslovakian pitchblende mines, America is still and will probably continue to be the leading producer of radium of the world, and it has the largest known reserves of radium bearing minerals.

The importance of the pitchblende mines of Bohemia (Czechoslovakia) has been greatly exaggerated in the public mind, according to Frank L. Hess, specialist in the rarer metals, United States geological survey. Their total production up to the end of 1920 was only 20,962 grams, while during the year 1920 alone nine radium plants in this country isolated and placed in tubes for medical and scientific use 32,539 grams (1.15 ounces) of radium worth about $2,253,000, and during the same year ore carrying 43.4 grams (about 1.5 ounces) of radium was mined.

British interests expect 50 to 60 grams of radium from their holdings in about fifteen years, but America at the 1920 rate of production would accomplish this in two years.

"Since 1911 when the first uranium minerals were mined in this country for radium, ore carrying 186.5 grams (6.5 ounces) has been mined," explained Mr. Hess. In all about 135 grams of this quantity were extracted, but probably one-quarter of the total American output was dissipated on watch faces, signs and other self-illuminated objects, principally during the war. Europe probably almost exhausted the radium supplies by such uses during the war.

The whole stock of radium in the world today is not more than 100 grams (3.5 ounces), worth $10,000,000 to $12,000,000, or 17 to 20 tons in gold coin.

"In spite of optimistic estimates by some, recent investigations seem to show that our probable radium supplies, though largest in the world, are so small that they should be carefully conserved and that no radium should be used for illumination," Mr. Hess says.

THOUSANDS LIKE HIM IN VOLGA DISTRCT, RUSSIA

One of the starving and tubercular children caught by the cameraman at the Samara station, Volga district, Russia. Thousands more like him are awaiting relief, if such is possible, in the Russian starvation area.

Queer Animal Friendship.

A unique friendship exists between a ram and a heifer owned by an Alberta farmer. The ram runs with the cattle instead of the sheep. He compels the heifer to go wherever he wants her to. He brings her in from the pasture to the watering trough and back again, separated from the rest of the cattle. If she goes in the wrong direction he corrects her by going around and butting her with his head.

STEALING THUNDER!

WHEN DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS presented his supreme production

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS"

at the LYRIC THEATRE, New York the resounding 'Boom' of the sensational hit was heard by a band of money-getters who unearthed an old film made years ago, which they presented in another theatre.

With a blare of trumpets, street ballhoo, they tried to tell the public they had something just as good.

You can teach a Parrot to say "something just as good," but the New York public did not fall for their scheme to get some easy money from the other fellow's thunderous hit, and in spite of the bushels of free tickets, and inducements offered to school teachers to sell tickets to the school children cheap, no crowds ever stormed their doors.

Their scheme fell flat and they folded their tents like the Arabs, in the night and stole away.

In a few isolated spots in the country there is a class of theatre manager whose symbol is "Get the Money No Matter How" but the echo of the stolen thunder acts as a boomerang of empt seats because of dissatisfied patrons who are duped into believing they are seeing the real thing when it is only something "NOT SO GOOD."

WARNING!!

MR. and MRS. KINGSTON

You are being told there is something in town "just as good" but the original producer Mr. Thomas E. Ince has requested the public to please not compare his production made so many years ago, under the title of D'ARTAGNAN, as the comparison would be odious and reflect on his capibilities as a producer.

In conclusion let us state there is only one

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

and only one GREAT PRODUCTION of Alexander Dumas's immortal classic

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS"

and this SENSATION OF THE CENTURY will be shown exclusively at the

COLONIAL THEATRE

Thanksgiving Week, Starting Monday, Nov. 21

SECOND TEAM LOSES.

Middletown Beats Kingston Cubs 6 to 0.

In a closely contested game, the Middletown High School second football team defeated the local second team 6-0, at that city Saturday. Like St. Stephen's, Middletown played with some of their varsity men in the lineup, three in number. The game ended with the ball in Kingston's possession on Middletown's 12 yard line, first down. The scrubs certainly deserve credit and if Kingston does not have a championship team next year it will not be the fault of these lads.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Jeneva B. Hardy, wife of James F. Devaney, died in New York, Thursday, November 10. The funeral was held from the residence, 243 East Eighty-third street, this morning at 9 o'clock, thence to the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, Park avenue and Eighty-second street. The remains were brought to Rosendale this afternoon and interred in St. Peter's cemetery, that village.

Mrs. Emily McGarry Russell, wife of William Grant Russell, died at her home on Main street, Rosendale, this morning, at 3 o'clock, after a painful illness of seven years. She was born at Roxbury, Delaware county, October 29, 1849, where she lived her entire life with the exception of the past ten years' residence in Rosendale. Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Nellie Meeker, who resides at her home and one son, William H. Russell, of New York city. The funeral will be held at her late home in Rosendale, Wednesday afternoon, November 16 at 2 o'clock. Interment in Rosendale Plains cemetery.

Mrs. Susanna Schleede, wife of Charles Schleede, died early this morning after a lingering illness. Mrs. Schleede was born in Bremen, Ind., the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. George C. Schuster, and came to this city about forty-one years ago, where she has since resided and where by her Christian character she was beloved by all who knew her. She had long been a devout and faithful member of the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church. Besides her husband, she leaves three sons, the Rev. Carl Schleede, of Bronxville, N. Y., and Paul and Martin Schleede of this city, and five sisters and one brother. The funeral will be held from her late home, No. 76 Crane street, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and 2:30 at the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church on Livingston street. Interment in the family plot in Montrepose cemetery.

ST. STEPHEN'S 2NDS LOSE TO LOCALS

By 34-0 Score—High School Team, If They Now Beat Poughkeepsie and Brooklyn School May Get Chance at Best Metropolitan Team For Championship.

The Kingston High School footballers easily defeated the St. Stephen's team 34-0 in a stirring contest at the Athletic Field, Saturday.

The Annandale "ministers" strove heroically to stem the fierce onslaughts of the Maroon and White men, but all to no avail. The game in its outcome exceeded Coach MacIntyre's wildest hopes. Like Albany, the St Stephen's boys come upon the field quite over-confident. What is more, five of their varsity men were playing on the line and the Maroon lads were outweighed at every position.

The actions of the visitors were amusing toward the finish of the game and their derisive phraseology in the calling the locals "just plain kids" was laughable. But the "ministers" proved themselves good sports and declared that next year they will bring their entire first team along to play the Maroon eleven.

The local eleven had only put in two honest days' work before the game, but it was proven that they have lost none of their fine team work.

Anderson proved himself the shining light of the game. He completed four aerial tosses and scored three touchdowns as a result. At tackling and open field running he proved himself unusually adept.

Muller ranks next. His broken field running again caused untold delight to the Maroon rooters. He scored the two remaining touchdown. Muller is as square a quarterback as ever called signals. After a sensational run by Colvin, which placed the ball two yards from the goal line, he again gave Colvin his chance for a touchdown, but unfortunately Stanley did not score.

Vogt's punts and passes were all to be desired. Muller ran him on line bucks with marked success. Dressel toured the wings for innumerable gains but his besetting sin is line bucking with head up.

Beehler, Snyder and Gormley as guards proved themselves as stone walls and on the defensive their tackling is highly commendable. Beehler's kicking toe was in fine form and he missed but one of his attempted goals from touchdown. It was certainly a lucky day for Coach "Mac" when he singled him out to kick.

Rowland played well throughout the game, but he was unable to display his usual form because of a bang in the forepart of the game which rendered his left side rather painful.

Kingston should defeat Poughkeepsie next week for the championship honors of the Hudson Valley by a good round score, and in order to do this over-confidence must not exist. Poughkeepsie November 5 defeated St Stephen's second string men 13-0; none of the Annandale Varsity men were playing. Saturday at Newburgh the Flannery clan only won by a 19-7 score against the Hilly City aggregation with McKeever out of the game.

If the locals win next Saturday's game and the Brooklyn Evening High School game in this city Thanksgiving Day they will probably be afforded the opportunity of playing the New York city champions for the titular honors of the southern part of the state.

Watson Wheeler, former K. H. S football idol, refereed the game and in all cases were his decisions just.

The game by periods follows:

Captain Case won the toss and chose to receive at the western goal.

The ball was kicked off high, soared for 38 yards and was received by Case who advanced the pigskin 10 yards. Lining up fast the Maroon men gained 2 yards on the first play. On the next play Muller gained 4 yards and St. Stephen's was penalized 15 yards. But on the next play Muller did not fare to well as he was thrown for a 3 yard loss. Having gained nothing on the next two plays Vogt punted 25 yards to a St. Stephen's back field man. In turn the "ministers" were held for downs and Richey punted. Muller received the punt advanced the ball 10 yards and St. Stephen's was penalized 5 yards off side. On the first play the locals gained nothing but on the next two plays Colvin gained 10 yards through the center of the line. Dressell was spilled for a 1 yard loss but Muller gained 15 yards on a completed forward pass from Vogt and subsequently, another first down. On four more plays Kingston gained another first down and the "ministers" were penalized 15 yards for illegal use of hands. End of quarter.

Second period. The second period opened with a greater show of resistance from St. Stephen's. On three consecutive plays Dressel gained 7 yards and there came the first blood of the fray.

On a snappy pass Anderson nabbed the ball and crossed the goal line for a touchdown, and Beehler kicked the goal. Score 7-0. St. Stephen's chose to receive. Beehler kicked off 55 yards and the ball was advanced 12 yards. An attempted forward pass was completed and Anderson dropped the man in his tracks. But the up-river Maroon men were held for downs and receiving a 36 yard punt, Muller advanced the ball 5 yards. Then the Maroon team charged down the field. First down after first down was gained. Then Muller scored a touchdown from forward pass. Beehler kicked the goal. Score 14-0.

St. Stephen's received the ball again on a kick off by Vogt. The ball see-sawed up and down the field, many times changing hands often. End of half.

Vogt kicked off again to St Stephen's but no advancement of the ball was made as a fumble caused the Annandale men to fight frantically for the possession thereof. Then the local line tightened after a first down was made and recovering a fumble. Here the ball see-sawed a bit but when next Kingston gained the ball Anderson completed a forward pass and galloped off for another touchdown. Beehler kicked goal. Score 21-0.

Once again Vogt kicked off to the "ministers." Essaying several passes, none of which were successful, the Annandalites lost the ball on downs.

Kingston gained one first down but McLean was forced to punt, but it seemed that the visitors lacked pep and punch, for Kingston again received the ball. End of quarter. Score 21-0.

Final Period.

Kingston was this time held for downs and receiving the ball, St. Stephen's advanced it seven yards but next they lost the oval when Muller intercepted a forward pass. At this juncture Gormley was substituted for Snyder. Then the ball was advanced by Colvin, Vogt, Dressel and Muller to St. Stephen's 32 yard line and receiving a forward pass Anderson raced the intervening ground for his third and final touchdown. Beehler failed to kick goal. Score 27-0.

Vogt kicked-off to the "ministers" and charging up the field Anderson tackled the St. Stephen's receiver so hard that he fumbled the ball, but the force of the impact rendered Andy unconscious. McLean fell on the fumbled ball. Then Muller gained 12 yards on an end run and placed the ball on St. Stephen's eight yard line. Then Colvin advanced the ball within two yards of the goal. Then giving Colvin a chance to make his touchdown, Stanley was forced out of bounds. Bringing the ball into play, Muller scratched over the line for a touchdown. Beehler kicked the goal. Score, 34-0. Soon after the quarter ended. End of game!

Going Up.

An Englishman went to a baseball game, and both sides made one run each during the first inning. The Englishman watched the score board intently, as each team failed to make a run inning after inning. The game had gone 16 innings, and the figure one and the zeros following had left their impression on the mind of the Englishman. Going down the street after the game, a small boy stopped him and asked what the score was. "Oh," said the Englishman, "I lost all track of the game; it's up in the millions."—The Argonaut, San Francisco.

Learn Truth About Star.

Some time ago it was reported by a distinguished astronomer that the star called Xi Geminorum, which has long been known as a variable, is in reality double, but its two components are so close that no telescope is able to separate them, and their existence is proved by the shifting lines in the spectrum. The variations in brightness, it is thought, can only be due to the attraction between the two stars raising immense tides in their mutual or vaporous globes, which, through the effect of compression or otherwise, displace the spectral lines.

Synthetic Rubber and Leather.

Ten parts of resin containing 30 per cent water are mixed with one part of glycerin and six parts of tar. When these are properly mixed, eighteen parts of glue is dissolved in it, and the whole is treated with formaldehyde, heated and pressed into molds when hot. This is a method given by Popular Science Monthly for the manufacture of synthetic rubber and leather. If rubber is desired a low pressure is employed, whereas if leather is desired a high pressure is employed. A very similar procedure results in a soft material like Para rubber.

THE SOFT BROWN FELT HAT

There is dash to this sport hat of soft brown felt with the crown slashed into bands to hold the broad satin ribbon.

TWO OR MORE GOWNS IN ONE

Girdle, Devised to Answer Purpose of Belt, Is an Accessory Which Solves Many Problems.

A girdle seems a simple little thing, a pretty convention in dressing that answers the purpose of a belt. That is the primitive thought about a girdle. But, contemplating the girdle—it is an accessory in attractive dressing that carries a potency of making one gown seem like two, or more.

The scarf girdles now in the shops may be arranged in little front and back panels, in drooping points, that are deftly tucked under the lower edge of the waistline folds, the ends meeting at the left hip in a loose knot. This turns a blouse and skirt into a one-piece gown if the two pieces are of similar material, and if they are not the blouse becomes a vastly fitted waist with straight lines and loose adjustment.

These scarf girdles are three and four yards long and three-quarters of a yard wide. They are shown in silk and satin, and in chiffon velvet—and in all colors. A girdle of sea green chiffon velvet is slightly shirred, lengthwise, the center of the front and back and over the hip lines—it circles the waist and extends half way to the arms and droops to the hip line. It is loosely contoured with soft wires. The closing is at the left side in a small lap that is finished with small buttons covered with velvet.

A girdle of soft black satin is of big roses, the blossoms done in big petals of the fabric. These petals are wired into shape, and the centers are loose knots of the fabric flecked with dots in orange floss. A red silk girdle is composed in soft flat folds, and at intervals from the lower edge droop loops of ribbon three inches wide, of the same red hue. The closing at the left side is accomplished under a red metal buckle.

A girdle with a stiff lace foundation is covered with folds of lemon tulle strewn with silver dust. The folds are held in place with rows of sparkling little buttons. Another girdle is of white chiffon cloth, about three inches wide, and adorned with rosettes done in soft satin ribbon two inches wide.

NEW AUTUMN VEILS ARRIVE

Face and Headgear Decorations of Variety to Suit the Demand for Any Occasion.

Along with autumn days come veils in a multitude—capricious little duds hailed by swathing scarfs to guard against the consequences of rough weather beating upon the complexion. The new misty lace veils that merely are enhancements for the face have a wider border in fine thread embroidery—one has a wide border in big dots while another type has a wide border in rows of stitchery in silk floss.

The usual border of these filmy veils is an embroidery design in blossom and leaves woven into the fabric. These veils are popular in black and in white. Those in colors are discordant note. A fine net veil has chrysanthemums sprawled over it, and a leaf design ravelles the border.

The net veil thickly strewn with dots and finished with a border in leaf and cocoon design is pronounced a leader for chilly days—and it is a festival of stately scope. The new lace veils of thicker thread are plain some will sparsely scattered leaves over the fabric, and others have convolutions designs. Few small face veils are shown. The scarf veils that affect novelty in draping over the hat brim and falling straight over the face have no limit in the market, both in lace and tulle fabrics. They are sprinkled over the hat in no preferred, and many ends fall behind, secured at the edge of the brim at the back in a bit of lace knot.

Chiffon veils are both thin and thick, to be adapted to weather and use. Some have wide borders, sometimes of self embroidered in green, leaf or conventional designs. Some of these chiffon or georgette veils are strewn with small dots in all shapes.

Motor veils are voluminous in size, flowing in a wide expanse from the crown in puppet with frost.

INTUITION MORE THAN HUNCH

Consequently, as Lady Writer Says, It Must Never Miscarry, but There Have Been Instances.

"I have discussed the matter with a celebrated doctor of medicine (who believes that genius is caused by microbes), and he ascribes intuition to an atavistic endowment. He somewhat inconsistently mentions Eve and Ann Whitfield in the same sentence by way of epigram. After going to all this trouble he was quite insulted when I hinted he was trying to explain the existence of something that did not exist. Yet I will bet all I have in my pockets that the dear doctor has never once in his life allowed a female nurse's intuition to tell him where to dig for an appendix.

"Hell hath no fury like a woman whose intuition hath slipped a cog. A popular journal recently had the temerity to challenge the idol as a joke column: Two women are talking. One says: 'I hear that Mrs. Titherington-Blobbs has eloped with Major Snow.' The other replies: 'How disgusting. I thought it would be Colonel Swish.' What, pray, disgusted the lady but the miscarriage of her intuition?

"Intuition, if it existed, would never miscarry; otherwise it would be a mere hunch, such as a man may receive. If woman's hunches were infallible the gift would have been capitalized long ago. Throgmorton street mocks the wrecks of men who have tried to capitalize their wives' intuitions."—Boston Herald.

"Mothercraft."

"Mothercraft, a movement for better preparation of girls for motherhood, has within the last five years made remarkable progress in this and other countries," writes Marion Chase Baker, in the Survey. "Starting in Massachusetts as a definite standardized course of study for girls and young women, it has in one form or another been adopted in most of the states, in the dominion of Canada under the auspices of the Victorian Order of Nurses, and to some extent in several other foreign countries. State and national branches of the Federated Women's clubs have taken the initiative in promoting mothercraft. It has also had support from parent-teacher associations, Red Cross workers, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Americanization centers and playground associations."

Why Men Hate Shops.

"Of course," said the floorwalker in the big department store somewhat apologetically to the clerk at the stocking counter, "I suppose it's talking against my own sex, but you can't tell me men are more efficient than women, at least not in the stores.

"When a man comes in here he never thinks of coming to me and asking where he can find the desired article. Instead he roams all around the store, asks saleslgirls who aren't supposed to know the different departments and gets mad generally because he doesn't get what he wants in a hurry. That's one of the reasons why men hate to shop. They don't use their heads at all."—New York Sun.

Tin Hats on Peace Footing.

There are no swords to be turned into ploughshares in modern warfare, but on many a field the famous tin hat of the American soldier is now doing sentry duty to scare away feathered marauders, the New York Sun states.

The tin hat is playing its part as gallantly in the arena of agriculture as in that of war. Perched upon a broom pole around which an old coat has been draped, it helps to create a rather formidable figure of a scarecrow. In some instances, when the coat is of gold army cloth, the multicolored figure when seen from a distance looks not unlike a general from the fields of France.

Altitude.

Altitude in astronomy is the vertical height of any point or body above the horizon. It is measured or estimated by the angle suspended between the object and the plane of the horizon, and may be either true or apparent. The apparent altitude is that which is obtained immediately from observation; the true altitude, that which results from correcting the apparent altitude, by making allowance for parallax, refraction, etc.

A TAXI CHAT
PROMPT, SAFE, COURTEOUS SERVICE

In a former advertisement we told you WHY we were NOT THE CHEAPEST Taxicab Service in this city. We will explain further.

In addition to the High Grade Service we maintain, we have just installed in each of our new enclosed Limousine Taxicabs the most modern heater produced—thus insuring passengers the comfort and warmth of your home on cold, unpleasant days and nights. Furthermore we present to each passenger daily, the "Kingston Leader" mornings; the "Kingston Freeman" afternoons, and the "New York Evening Telegram" evenings—just a little inexpensive courtesy to our patrons—yet one that is appreciated.

We invite the traveling public to place their early morning calls with our night manager. This Call Service is free of charge and absolutely dependable if your telephone is in proper working condition. Passengers for trains or boats have never missed their connection—(as a result of our negligence) since we have operated this company. Rather an enviable record, we think!

Our new enclosed funeral and wedding cars are beauties, and are priced as follows: 2-passenger limousines, $4.00; 4 passenger sedans, $5.00; 6-passenger sedans, $6.00.
